Granada, Spain.

I consider myself a creative, decisive and self-taught person, always dedicated and motivated to achieve the challenges that I have been setting since I was younger. As an architect, I strongly believe that I can develop a good teamwork environment, leading, programming, organizing and motivating people who compose it, if necessary.

While projecting, I have a special interest in direction, management and programming, always eager to solve problems that might be encountered from the initial phases, through the technical stages of the project.

I would be excited to be part of a team in which I can put my previous knowledge into practice while, with the experience of this, I can specialize in construction techniques that help me improve in the field of execution.
